Click on a category, Select an image, Tap Set wallpaper. It's even easier. Let's break down the details as follows. Tap to open the Photos app on your iPhone with the latest iOS version. Browse your iPhone Camera Roll to find your favorite photo to set as your new iPhone wallpaper. Tap it to select it and view it in the Photos app. In the lower left corner you will find the share button. Tap the Share button, then tap More in the upper-right corner to see the following sharing options. At the bottom of your iPhone, swipe from the right to the left of the screen to see the "Use as wallpaper" option. Tap it, then you can move and resize the selected photo, and then set it as the wallpaper for your iPhone's lock screen, home screen, or both. In a Finder window or on the desktop, locate the image file you want to use. Ctrl and click (or right-click)file, then select Set Desktop Image from the popup menu. If you are using multiple displays, only the background image of the main display will change. If you don't see Set Desktop Image in the context menu, you should instead see a submenu called Services. Here, select Set Desktop Image. In Windows 10, go to Start. Type "background" and then select Background Settings from the menu. A preview of the image will be displayed in the background settings. There is a drop-down list under Background. Select "Image" and then choose an image or "Browse". Select "Full Color" and then select a color. Select "Slideshows" and go to the Pictures folder. Under Choose an adjustment, choose an option, such as "Fill" or "Center". Windows 7 Right-click on an empty area of the desktop and select Personalize. The control panel customization panel will appear. In the lower left corner of the window, click Desktop Background. Click on any image and Windows 7 will quickly place it on your desktop background. Did you find the guard? Click Save Changes to save them to your desktop. If not, click the Image Position menu for other options. Or, if you're still looking, go to the next step. Click the Browse button and click a file from your personal Pictures folder. Most people store their digital photos in the Photos folder or Library. When you are happy with your selection, click Save Changes and close the Desktop Background window. Exit the program and the selected photo will remain on the desktop as the background. British video game magazine Retro Gamer Issue 108PublisherMarty Carroll (2004-2005)Darran Jones (2005-present)CategoryVideo Game JournalismFrequency MonthFirst issue March 2004 CompanyLive Publishing - 2004...01..01. CountryUnited KingdomLanguageEnglishWebsitewww.retrogamer.netISSN1742-3155 Retro Gamer is a UK-based worldwide magazine dedicated to video games. It was the first commercial magazine devoted exclusively to this subject. Retro Gamer was launched in January 2004 as a quarterly magazine and soon became a monthly. In 2005, a general decline in readership of gaming and computer magazines led to the closure of their publishing house, Live Publishing[1], and the rights to the magazine were later acquired by Imagine Publishing[2]. It was acquired by Future plc on October 21, 2016 after being acquired by Future Publishing. History The first 18 issues of the magazine appeared with a cover. It typically included free retro video game remakes and emulators, as well as movies and free commercial PC software like The Games Factory and The Elder Scrolls: Arena. Some releases included themed CDs with a full back catalog from publishers such as Durell, Llamasoft, and Gremlin Graphics. On September 27, 2005, the magazine's original publisher, Live Publishing, went bankrupt. The magazine's official online forums listed the magazine as "completed" just prior to the scheduled release of issue #19. However, the rights to Retro Gamer were acquired by Imagine Publishing in October 2005 and the magazine was relaunched on December 8, 2005. Retro Survival is a commercial retro gaming magazine on CD created by freelance writers at Retro Gamer after the end of Live Publishing. Released in November 2005, the CD contains articles that would appear in issue #19 of Retro Gamer magazine, as well as several extras, including a foreword by famed gaming journalist Mr. Biff. In June 2004, a tribute to Zzap! 64, "DEF Homage to Zzap! 64, commemorating the 20th anniversary Commodore 64 magazine. Includes interviews with leading programmers of the 1980s and 1990s such as David Crane, Matthew Smith and Archer McLean. The regular columns also include articles like "Back to the 80s.(Profile of a specific game developer or publisher). "Making Of's" is a recurring show that interviews high profile developers about the process of creating and designing their games. Classic titles covered in previous issues include Breakout (Steve Wozniak), Dungeon Master (Doug Bell), Smash TV (Eugene Jarvis), Starfox (Jez San), Rescue on Fractalus! (David Fox/Charlie Kellner), Prince of Persia (Jordan Mechner), Berzerk (Alan McNeil), The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy (Steve Meretzky), Crystal Castles (Franz X. Lanzinger), Tetris (Alexey Pajitnov), Sheep in Space (Jeff Minter) Out Run (Yu Suzuki) and Splat! (Ian Andrews). Issue 48 (February 2008) featured an exclusive interview with Manic Miner creator Matthew Smith, written by freelancer Paul Drury after visiting Smith's family home in Liverpool. In March 2010 (Issue 75), John Romero collaborated with Retro Gamer, taking on the role of "guest editor", assuming editorial responsibility for the magazine and bringing his own unique style to many of his favorite articles and topics in the magazine. [4] In January 2016, the magazine celebrated its 150th issue, and as of November 2016 its staff consists of Editor Darran Jones, Production Editor Drew Sleep, Executive Writer Nick Thorpe, Designer Sam Ribbits. The magazine posts its own release preview videos on its YouTube channel, co-hosted by Editor Darran Jones and Production Editor Drew Sleep. Digital version Three DVDs numbered 25 to 30 have been released over the years: Retro Gamer eMag Load 1 [6] (numbered 1 to 30) Retro Gamer eMag Load 2 [7] (numbered 31 to 55) Retro Gamer eMag Load 3 [8] (numbered 56 to 80) Retro Gamer is now available as an iOS app and downloadable for iPhone and iPad. History 4Players GmbH was founded in May 2000 by internet agency Active Newmedia GmbH in partnership with Freenet AG. Subsequently, 4Players GmbH launched the 4Players website in August of the same year. Freenet sold 4Players GmbH to Computec Media in December 2012, effective January 1, 2013 [4] [5] June 30, 2020 owned by Computec Media.The group transferred 4Players GmbH to 4Players AG, a newly formed public limited company in Switzerland, directly owned by the Marquard Group. The conglomerate said it expects "huge expansion" for 4Players as a result of the move.[2] However, the site announced in August 2021 that it would close on October 31, 2021. As a result, 40 of 4Player GmbH's 50 employees will be laid off while the rest continue to run the company's other businesses, including game servers. Hosting service 4Netplayer , the communication software Odin and the multiplayer tool Scill.[6] Shortly after publication of the last article, 4Players AG announced that there had been several offers to keep the site running. The review resumed on November 11, with Mathias Oertel as deputy editor and several freelancers nominally working at Computec as authors.[6][7] 4Players offers news, reviews and downloads on various video game platforms. The main page is divided into sections for each platform of the portal: PC, PS4, Xbox One, Wii U, VR and handheld. In addition, the 4Players providers cover a general video game community, eSports, a tips section, an internet forum and also a video section with video reviews.[8] The portal also offers additional functions such as an iPhone and Android app and a Teamspeak server service.[9][10] Turnover In February 2016, 4Players was one of the largest German online video game portals with around 7 million page views and 801,000 unique visits per month.[11] In 2008, 4Players was one of the main critics of Atari's new game Alone in the Dark, taking it to court after giving the game an average rating. 4Players was accused of receiving a pirated copy of the game before its release, and Atari wanted to force 4Players to remove the review from its site. At the same time, Atari also canceled an advertising campaign on the 4Players website, which was interpretedpud further pressure on the online portal. This led to widespread national and international media coverage, forcing Atari to drop their claims, and 4Players and Atari were able to settle their differences out of court. ↑ Wall, John (August 23, 2021).
