Improved stability and general performance. Let's play! Rather enjoy it, but it takes so to level your character in the real world for ppl who work a lot. It takes so long that it gets boring in my opinion, then you have guild battles and you can never participate because the game does not load out the who has not been lit as 89 days. I tried to join or create a guild, but it's not happening. Don't Do Me Wrong This is an excellent game if you want to consume time but work more than a job you won't have much time. Plz fixes these problems which I appreciate very much. It has a lot of potential if they do it right. If you can make a newer version with the camera behind the player and more options than just one button too attack with the staff you can charge for this plus fix these other issues that my other players have complained about. Thank you. Since April 7 / April 8, 2020, I have not been able to pass the "Connecting" portion of the loading screen on startup. I was hoping it was a quick fix on GI's side. Checked the support page and did everything they suggested (and more) to try to fix the unavailable issue. I thought, "It's been almost a week now and I haven't gotten a response apart from the Automatic Message which tells me to do the same things I've already tried several times. I had purchased some packages to help with the (then) upcoming Guild War and Easter Egg Hunt Event: Only to find out I can't be a part of any of them. I have to say I was very disappointed and lost a lot of faith in Gameloft. I coveted so many of their mobile games, but lately it just seems like I'm trying to rush the spotted upgrades to keep players on their toes and, hopefully, developers, digging into their wallets. Normally I would like to rate these 4/5 stars, only lowering one because of the P2W factor. However, with Gameloft they seem to care less about customer support, I put it at my 2/5 rating and would not recommend it, and many more of their games to anyone. A quick side Note: I have read of many instances in online forums of this same problem that happen multiple times through the past. You'd think they could have solved it much easier. There will never be a game of dungeon hunters like the first 2 parties, and they have been away and trapped in the past due to negligence. They were beautiful guided games for individual players. I can't even tell you about the countless hours I spent on Dungeon Hunter 1, 2 and Dungeon Hunter Alliance for PS3 and Psvita. Dungeon Hunter 3 was okayyyyy but definitely a downgrade, so released Dungeon Hunter 4. It was a combination of a good story driven by the single player experience with a multiplayer option. And now you've gone full circle with your latest versions. There are countless paywalls in new games. I miss being able to just play. I can't take it anymore. I have to pay for a game now. We hope you come to your senses and release a real game, but most companies / game publishers nowadays, you probably will never. It's a shame, really. Dungeon Hunter 2 is my favorite mobile game of all time. I played that game so much at the point where I memorizedaspect of the game. (Glitch, resort chest, ways to do things more quickly and efficiently, agricultural positions) and there's nothing funny for new games © because none of those unique experiences is more possible. There is a wide variety of gambling game currency than when there are energy systems. It is also punitive towards new players while watching how the ranking system is installed in the Arena.
