So in this code snippet image will make the image center cropped.import android.support.design.widget.AppCompatActivity;import android.os.Bundle;import android.widget.ImageView;import com.squareup.picasso.Picasso;public class MainActivity extends AppCompatActivity {    @Override    protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState)    {        super.onCreate(savedInstanceState);        setContentView(R.layout.activity_main);        ImageView imageView = findViewById(R.id.imageView);        Picasso.with(this).load(" ") // Equivalent of what ends up in        onBitmapLoaded(R.mipmap.ic_launcher).error(R.drawable.error_gfg).centerCrop().fit().into(imageView);    }}Output:Troubleshooting while loading an image using Picasso LibraryOutOfMemoryError Loading Errors If an image or set of images aren't loading, make sure to check the Android monitor log in Android Studio. There's a good chance you might see a java.lang.OutOfMemoryError "Failed to allocate a [...] byte allocation with [...] free bytes" or an Out of memory on a 51121168-byte allocation. This is quite common and means that you are loading one or more large images that have not been properly resized. First, you have to find which image(s) being loaded are likely causing this error. For any given Picasso call, we can fix this by one or more of the following approaches: Add an explicit width or height to the ImageView by setting layout_width=500dp in the layout file and then be sure to call fit() during your load: Picasso.with(...).load(imageUri).fit().into(...)Open up your static placeholder or error images and make sure their dimensions are relatively small (< 500px width). If not, resize those static images and save them back to your project.Try removing android:adjustViewBounds="true" from your ImageView if present and if you are calling .fit() rather than using .resize(width, height)Call .resize(width, height) during the Picasso load and explicitly set a width or height for the image such as: Picasso.with(...).load(imageUri).resize(500, 0).into(...). By passing 0, the correct height is automatically calculated.Reference:
